Methodologies

	Description
Mentored work	The students will work individually in the classroom with a continuous orientation by the professor. During this period, the professor also will give to the students a critical orientation of the projects, respecting the fundamental interests of the creative project of the student. In addition to these tasks, the professor will propose activities as a visualization and critical comment of videos, open comments about the evolution of the students projects, etc.
Workshops	Short length seminars with a specialist inside the area of knowledge. These seminars can include conferences and another type of practical methodologies.
Studies excursion	Visit an Art Center, artist community, artist study related with Live Art.
Debate	We will propose different debates involving live art issues. In order to prepare these debates we are going to use different information sources: basically video and theoretical articles. If it is necessary, these articles will be writing in English.

Other comments

The contents and actions that structure and conform the practical projects that the students present during the course and during the exams never are determined by the professor. These contents and actions build a personal project and are chosen freely by the student who is the only one person responsible for his/her acts.

For these reasons, the professor is not responsible for the consequences that could derive of the process of creation/presentation of the students practical projects and exams.
